

Relationships at work

LESLEY MAKAU

“

I think that the world has millions of problems, but if we try to solve them, we then see that the world has millions of opportunities.

My favourite quote is "Equip yourself for life, not solely for your benefit, but for the benefit of the whole community"

WORKING WITH LEADERS

As an industrial-organisational psychology graduate with a knack for decoding workplace dynamics, motivation, and job satisfaction, Lesley is part strategist and part detective. Armed with, evidence-based strategies, and an insatiable curiosity, Lesley dives into research and analytics to make sense of the chaos and turn data into smarter decisions.

Lesley has worked in many industries including, defense, education, retail and corrections. He is currently exploring opportunities in Organisational Development, Talent Management, and Medico-Legal consulting and research, Lesley is driven by a passion for helping workplaces not just function, but thrive. When not dissecting the science behind productivity and wellness, Lesley is constantly chasing new ideas, and philanthropic initiatives, engaging in thought-provoking discussions, and finding creative ways to spark meaningful connections. With his interest in evidence-based strategies, fresh perspectives, or just a great conversation, Lesley is always open to connecting!

LIFELONG LEARNING

- MA Industrial Psychology
- Skills Development Facilitator
- Accredited in Several Psychometric Assessments & Engagement Tools